THE SECRET OF THE SPRING.

I.

The thermal waters of Spinbronn, situated in the Hunstruck, several leagues from Firmasens, formerly enjoyed a magnificent reputation. The savage aspect of the country did not prevent people afflicted with disease from coming from all parts of Germany to test the efficacy of its springs. They lodged in the pretty cottages at the bottom of the defile; they bathed in the cascade, which fell in large clouds of foam from the summits of the rocks; they drank one or two glasses of mineral water a day, and the doctor of the place, Daniel Haselnoss, who distributed his prescriptions dressed in a peruke and in chestnut colored clothes, did an excellent business.

Today the waters of Spinbronn figure no longer in the dispensatory; in this poor village only miserable wood cutters are to be seen, and, sad thing to say, Dr. Haselnoss has departed!

All this resulted from a succession of very singular events, which the Councillor Bremer, of Firmasens, related to me the other evening.

II.

"You know, Master Frantz," said he to me, "that the source of the Spinbronn comes from a kind of cavern about five feet high and from twelve to fifteen feet wide; the heat of the water is sixty seven degrees centigrade; it is saline. As regards the cavern, which is covered on the outside with moss, stones, and brush wood, the depth of it is not known, since the thermal exhalations which come from it effectually prevent any one from penetrating it.

"However, a singular thing had been remarked, that since the last century birds of the surrounding districts had disappeared in great numbers—thrushes, doves, hawkes—and people were in doubt to what mysterious influence this should be attributed.

"In 1801, during the season of the waters, by some inexplicable reason the source became more abundant, and the bathers who were one morning walking below upon the green turf saw falling from the cascade a human skeleton, white as the driven snow.

"You may judge, Master Frantz, of the general fright: it was naturally believed that a murder had been committed some preceding year at Spinbronn, and that the body of the victim had been thrown into the spring. But the skeleton did not weigh more than twelve pounds, and Haselnoss concluded from this that it must have been buried in the sand more than three centuries to have become reduced to this state of desiccation.

"This very plausible reasoning did not prevent a number of bathers, disgusted with having drank of the saline water, from departing at the close of the day. Those who were seriously ill consoled themselves. But the downfall continued; all that which the cavern contained of debris, of lime and of detritus, was disgorged in the following days: a veritable ossuary descended from the mountain; skeletons of animals of all sorts—of quadrupeds, of birds, of reptiles—in short, all that which a horrible fancy could conceive.

"Haselnoss immediately wrote an article demonstrating that all these bones belonged to an antediluvian period; that they were fossils which had been accumulating since the universal deluge—that is four thousand years before the birth of Christ—and that consequently they should be regarded as veritable stones, which indeed they really were. Scarcely had the remaining invalids become reassured by this explanation when the body of a fox and then that of a dove, with all its feathers, fell from the cascade.

"Impossible to assert that these remains were anterior to the deluge! The disgust was now so great that all hastened to prepare for a final departure.

"'How horrible!' cried the fine ladies. 'Shocking! That is what causes the virtue of these mineral waters! Ah! sooner die than be cured by such a remedy.'

"At the end of eight days there remained at Spinbronn only a large Englishman afflicted with the gout in both hands and feet, who was called Sir Thomas Hawerbuch, commodore, and who lived in much style and with a great retinue of servants, according to the custom of British subjects in a strange country. This person, large, corpulent, with a florid complexion, but with his hands literally knotted up with the gout had drank of the decoction de skeleton for the benefit of his health. He laughed much at the desertion of the other invalids, and installing himself in the prettiest chalet, half way down the hill, announced his intention of passing the winter at Spinbronn."

Here the Councillor Bremer absorbed slowly a large piece of tobacco in order to quicken his recollections, and shaking out the ruffles of his shirt with the end of his fingers he continued:

"Five or six years before the revolution of 1789 a young physician of Pirmasens, named Christian Weber, had departed for Santo Domingo in the hope of making a fortune there. He had amassed about one hundred thousand francs in the exercise of his profession when the revolt of the negroes broke out.

"It is unnecessary for me to recall to your mind the barbarous treatment which our unfortunate compatriots endured at Hayti. Dr. Weber had the good luck to escape the massacre and to save a portion of his fortune. In 1801 he returned to Pirmasens and established himself at Spinbronn, where Dr. Haselnoss said to him his house and his practice.

"Christian Weber had brought with him an old negress called Agatha—a frightful creature, with a broken nose, lips as large as your hand, and her head enveloped in a triple fold of the most gorgeous colored silk. This poor old woman adored red. She wore earrings in links which fell upon her shoulders, and the mountaineers of Hundstruck came to see her from six leagues around. As for the Doctor, he was a man large and thin, invariably dressed in a blue coat and breeches made of deerskin. He wore a hat of flexible straw and top-boots of bright yellow, upon the front of which hung two tassels of silver. He said little, laughed nervously, and his gray eyes, usually calm and thoughtful, beamed with a singular light at the least appearance of contradiction. Every morning he took a walk in the mountains, leaving his horse to follow on behind him at will, and chanting, always in the same tone, some air of negro melody. This original man brought from Hayti a number of boxes filled with all sorts of odd insects—some black and some brown, large as hen's eggs; others small and brilliant as sparks of light. He seemed to be more interested in them than in his patients, and oftentimes returning from his walks he would have the brim of his hat filled with butterflies.

"So soon as he was established in the large house of Haselnoss, he stocked the lower court with strange fowls—with Barbary geese, with their scarlet gills, with Guinea hens, and with a white peacock perched usually upon the wall of the garden, and who shared, with the negress, the admiration of the mountaineers.

"If I have entered too much into details, Master Frantz, it is because they bring to my mind the days of my youth. Dr. Weber was at once my cousin and my tutor, and upon his return to Germany had installed me with him at Spinbronn. The black Agatha inspired me at first with some fear; her irregular features interested but repelled me. However, she was so good natured, she knew so well how to make sweet cakes, she hummed with her gutteral voice such strange little songs, clapping her hands and keeping time with her large limbs, that I ended by taking her into my confidence and regard.

"Dr. Weber was naturally attracted towards Sir Thomas Hawerbuch, who was his most profitable if not his only patient; and I soon observed that these two singular men held often long conversations together. They talked of mysterious things—of the transmission of fluids, and they gave vent to odd gestures which they had observed, the one and the other, in their travels—Sir Thomas in the East and my tutor in South America. This puzzled me much. As it often happens to children, I was always on the watch for that which they seemed to wish to conceal from me; but finally, despairing of discovery I took occasion to interrogate Agatha, and the poor old woman, after having made me promise to say nothing, confessed to me that my tutor was a sorceror.

"Certainly the doctor exercised a singular influence upon the mind of the negress, and this woman, usually so gay and always ready to be amused at anything, trembled like a leaf when the gray eyes of her master accidentally rested upon her.

"All this, Master Frantz, seems to you to have no connection with the waters of Spinbronn. But wait, wait! You will see by what a singular course of circumstances my history is connected with them.

"I have told you that birds were drawn into the cavern, and even large animals. After the final departure of the bathers some old inhabitants of the village remembered that a young girl named Louisa Muller, who lived with an infirm and aged grandmother in a cottage upon the hillside, had suddenly disappeared some fifty years ago. She started out one morning in the search for herbs in the forest, and since then no news had been heard of her. Only three or four days later some wood-cutters who were descending the mountain found, a few steps from the cavern, her sickle and apron.

"It was evident to every one that the skeleton which had fallen from the cascade, and concerning which Haselnoss had descanted so eloquently, was no other than that of Louisa Muller. The poor young girl had undoubtedly been drawn into the gulf by the same mysterious influence which acted daily upon weaker beings!

"What was the influence? No one knew. But the inhabitants of Spinbronn, superstitious like all mountaineers, asserted that the devil dwelt in the cavern, and terror was accordingly experienced by all who lived near

III.

"One afternoon in the month of July, 1802, my cousin was making a new classification of his insects, among which were several new ones he had caught the day before. I was near him, holding in one hand the lighted taper, and in the other needles for piercing the specimens. Sir Thomas, seated near the window, his feet upon a stool, was smoking a cigar and regarding us with a thoughtful air.

"I was a great favorite with Sir Thomas Hawerbuch and often accompanied him in his walks and drives over the mountain; he was amused with my childish attempts to chatter in English, and he would make of me in time, he said, a veritable gentleman.

"When he had ticketed all his butterflies, Doctor Weber opened the case of his largest insects and said: 'I captured yesterday a magnificent horn-beetle, the grand lucanus cervus: it has this singularity, that the right side is bifurcated in five branches. It is a rare specimen.'

"At the same time I gave to him the needle, and as he pierced the insect before fixing it upon the cork, Sir Thomas, until then immovable arose and, approaching a case, perceived the celebrated crab-fish of Guinea; which he regarded with a feeling of horror, which was imprinted in a striking manner upon his florid countenance.

"'Behold!' he cried, the most frightful thing in the world. Only look at it! It makes me shudder!'

"Indeed he was trembling, and a sudden pallor overspread his face.

"'Bah!' said my tutor; 'this is the prejudice of a child. Your nurse frightened you in childhood, and the impression remains. But if you consider this crab-fish with a large microscope you will be amazed at the perfect finish of its organs, at their admirable disposition—at their elegance, even.'

"'It disgusts me!' interrupted the Commodore, gruffly. 'Pan!'

"He turned it about on his hand.

"'Oh! I don't know why,' he said. 'It always makes my blood run cold!'

"Dr. Weber began to laugh, and I, who shared the feelings of Sir Thomas, I cried:

"'Yes, cousin, you should throw this villainous thing away. It is sickening—it spoils all the others.'

"'Little beast!' he said to me, while his eyes shone. 'Who obliges you to look at it? If it does not please you, you may go elsewhere.'

"Evidently he was angry: and Sir Thomas, who had gone to the window and was looking out, turned quickly around and, taking me by the hand, said in the kindest of tones:

"'Let your tutor, Frantz, keep his crab-fish; we love the trees better—the green grass. Let us go and take a walk!'

"'Yes,' cried the doctor, and return for supper at six o'clock.' Then, raising his voice: 'You are not offended, Sir Hawerburch?

"The commodore turned around and smiled gayly; then we mounted his carriage, which awaited him as usual at the gate. Sir Thomas wished to drive himself; so, dismissing his servant, he seated me beside him upon the same seat, and we started for Rothalps. As the carriage moved slowly along the sandy road a strange melancholy seized upon my soul. Sir Thomas also was grave. He perceived my sadness and said:

"'You do not love those horrible fish any more than I, Frantz. But, thank Heaven, there are none of them in this country. The one which your tutor has in his case came from Guiana. It lives in large marshy forests, which are constantly filled with hot vapors, with burning exhalations; this temperature is necessary for its life. Its web, or rather its vast sweep-net, wholly envelopes a thicket. It catches birds as our spiders catch flies. But chase from your mind these disgusting images, and drink a cup of my good Burgundy.'

"Then raising the top of the second seat he took from the straw a sort of gourd, from which he turned into a leather cup a full bumper. When I had drank my courage returned and I was ready to laugh at my former fear. The carriage, drawn by a small horse of the Ardennes, slender and nervous, crept along the sandy road, which lay before us almost perpendicular. Millions of insects buzzed in the bushes. At our right not a hundred steps from us, the dark edge of the forest of Rothalps extended, lightened by occasional patches of bright-colored trees and shrubs. At our left fell the waters of Spinbronn, and the higher we mounted the more distinctly could we see the silver foam, which, as it dropped into the abyss, was painted a deep azure. The noise of the falling waters resembled the noise of the striking of cymbals.

Newport Daily News.

TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1874.

THE DAY.

Messrs. Springer, Macomber and Southwick were yesterday elected representatives in Providence.

The House yesterday voted to appropriate $100,000 for a military telegraph in Texas which the committee on military affairs reported would cost about $30,000. That is the idea the House has of economy.

A bill was introduced in the New York legislature Monday night to incorporate the Cremation Society. It incorporates Edward A. Caswell, George Lorillard, John W. S. Arnold, Francis M. Weld and others, with a capital stock of $50,000, empowered to reduce to ashes bodies of the dead.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia are now building twelve engines and tenders for a railroad in southern Russia. A. Whitney & Sons of the same city are shipping large quantities of chilled iron car wheels to South America and Europe including wheels for horse car railroads in England. Messrs. P. G. Morris & Co. are making large numbers of sugar machines for the West Indies. The Reading Railroad Company are building and are going to build eighty iron steam colliers for the sea carrying of their coal business.

The Amerique is now free of water. If she could keep afloat after being abandoned why couldn't Captain Rossean keep her afloat? The French captain did well in transferring his passengers, though the danger of the transfer in a gale must have been about equal to that of remaining on the steamer, but it appears that in abandoning the steamer himself the French captain was suffering from a violent attack of fear. The Amerique is reported in good condition, and when found had only six or seven feet of water in her and her pumps worked well.

A writer in Harper's Monthly shows that the number of deaf, dumb, blind and feeble minded in the United States is probably not less than 90,000 while the total number under treatment in institutions is only 5837. In the state of New York the proportion of deaf and dumb cared for in institutions is thirty four per cent.; of the blind, ten per cent. and of feeble minded, about four per cent. These percentages are based on census returns but it is believed that the number of defectives is so underestimated that the true percentages are respectively seventeen, five and two. The writer goes on to show that New York might erect suitable asylums for all her defectives who are not provided for at home for half of what the new state house at Albany is estimated to cost, and he calculates the expense of maintaining all these unfortunates at less than a million dollars a year.

PRACTICAL BENEVOLENCE.

Less than a year ago there was organized in this city a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. We have not heard of its disbandment, nor have we heard of its doing anything. We've waited a fortnight to hear that the society had examined into the case of the cremated cat, but if the society has done anything about the case it has preserved a wonderful silence concerning it. A few days ago a horse dropped dead in the harness. We are not aware that there was any cruelty exercised to the horse, but the S. P. C. A might, at least, have looked into the matter. To go farther back, the pigeon shooting last Summer and the horse racing last Winter were carefully let alone by a society that had better disband as publicly as it was organized unless it means to do something more practical than circulate Our Dumb Animals and hold occasional meetings.

If the managers of the Prohibition party will allow us we would like to suggest that the cause of temperance would be more benefited by an action of law against one or two of the liquor sellers in this city than by holding temperance meetings which are attended by teetotalers who need no repentance and offering the pledge to children who will forget it by the time they are old enough to violate it. Of course it is more pleasant to hold a mass meeting than to prosecute a neighbor and a voter, but this consideration will not weigh heavily with men who have espoused the cause for the sake of doing good instead of having a good time.

We don't wish to be understood as deprecating the public temperance meetings nor underestimating the importance of inculcating right principles in the minds of the young, but the meetings and the pledges are only a part of the work to be done. The existence of a prohibitory law in this state is denied by some persons on technical grounds. We believe a test case ought to be made and one conviction we believe would do the cause of temperance more good than a couple of enthusiastic meetings in our churches. Drilling the troops is necessary, but a little actual fighting is also desirable.

NATIONAL CHEATING.

What's in a name? Would not inflation if called by any other name smell as rank and offensive in the nostrils of honest and intelligent men? Perhaps not. At any rate General Butler told a New York Herald reporter the other day that nobody was in favor of inflation. What our Western and more especially our Southern brethren seek is not inflation but an expansion of the currency. Oh yes! we see it all now. The hard money people may as well stop their indignation meetings and petitions for veto because nobody wants to inflate the currency but only to expand it. That's a gray horse of quite another color.

And then the shining light of finance and statecraft closed that celebrated optic and looked unutterable wisdom through its less distinguished brother as he revented the benefits of expansion to the interviewer of the Herald. Greenbacks, said he, cost the government nothing, while bonds cost five or six per cent a year for interest. Therefore, if the government issues more irredeemable and non-interest bearing greenbacks and buys up its bonds, it saves the interest money and reduces taxation.

Oh rare Ben Butler! Too rare, alas! for our country's good! Why should we not run the government press day and night for a considerable length of time and issue three or four billion dollars in greenbacks and buy up all our bonds and save the interest, and then, according to ex-Secretary of the Treasury Boutwell, we might never redeem the greenbacks and so save the principal. Why go we all the day oppressed with forebodings of notes coming due when we have skillful engravers and rapid presses and a financial Napoleon who has already projected a coup d'etat compared with which that of December second is insignificant?

If any man prefers certificates of government indebtedness which bear no interest, are now at more than twelve per cent. discount and still falling and which are likely never to be redeemed, to certificates which draw gold interest every six months and can be sold for par or above, if any man prefers the former to the latter, of course, there is no reason why the government should not accommodate him. But when we consider that greenbacks are notes without interest and payable when sinners repent and fools learn wisdom—tomorrow, which are forced by the debtor upon the creditor by legal enactments, the appearance of things is changed. If a bankrupt can persuade his creditors to exchange interest bearing for non-interest bearing notes he is fortunate, but if he resorts to some power he possesses to compel his creditors to make the exchange or either part of it, then he is a rascal.

But the financier who shuts his ominous eye and laughs immoderately over the inability of New York merchants to distinguish between inflation and expansion easily dodges all these points by declaring that there are two systems of morality—one for individuals and another for nations, he might add a third, one for himself. The country may save some interest by the general's scheme but it will inevitably lose financially and morally by issuing more of its notes and refusing in its Congress to make any provision for the payment of those notes.

STATE MISCELLANY.

Patrick Hanaway was found lying upon a sidewalk in Pawtucket, R. I., late Saturday night, insensible, with a wound on the back of his head, probably by a fall. At last accounts he had not revived and probably will not.

Carr; Secretary—Frederick M. Cottrell; Treasurer—J. Hamilton Clarke; Directors—George C. Carr, John W. Potter, J. Hamilton Clarke, Benjamin Bateman, Frederick M. Cottrell.

Mr. James Baker, a young man about thirty two years of age was caught in the shafting, while washing in the carding room of the old mill at Peacedale Saturday morning, and before the man could be extricated or the wheel stopped, his clothes were nearly torn from his person, breaking or dislocating his elbow and otherwise bruising him in a shocking manner. Dr. Wm. Sweet was called to attend the patient. It is feared that Mr. Baker has received internal injuries.

The temperance organization from Ywgoo Village, Mr. George P. Rose, manager, gave one of their interesting entertainments at the hall of S. H. Vaughan, Esq, Saturday evening, consisting of drama, dialogues and tableaux, according to the printed programme, to a large and crowded audience assembled from different parts of North Kingstown, who seemed to be highly gratified with the performances, but were much annoyed and disturbed by several disorderly men and boys, full of hop beer, &c; however, they were all allowed to remain for their own personal benefit. The net proceeds of the entertainment are to be contributed for the benefit of the Yawgoo Union Sabbath school.

SNOOKS'S CHROMO.

THE EL PASO JOURNAL OFFERS A CHROMO WHICH IT FIRMLY BELIEVES IS THE MOST ARTISTIC THING IN THE MARKET.

If the religious press gets ahead of the El Paso Journal, we give it fair warning that it must get up on its spine. We have stood the "Sleeping Cherubs" by the Christian Union; we have gazed on the picture of wall eyed virtue with which Bro. Talmage ropes in subscribers from the rural districts unmoved. But when the Christian at Work sends us a picture of two sore eyed dogs watching three merino rams, and wants us to pay them $20 for it, then, indeed, is the free spirit of an American citizen aroused.

We want it distinctly understood that we are in the chromo business ourselves.

Hereafter every subscriber that takes the El Paso Journal will receive a pretty chromo, entitled "Mrs. Snooks Washing the Children." It is one of those beautiful home pictures that appeal to the fondest and holiest affections of the heart. Every man who sees it says at once, "Would he were a boy again," when being washed and getting soap in his eyes was one of the regular Sunday afflictions next to the catechism.

In the foreground is Mrs. Snooks. Before her is a tub, and one of her orphans is struggling in the water. The artist has seized upon the moment when the infant has just opened his mouth for a prolonged solo, but is dexterously checked by his mother's swabbing his voice with a sponge. The manner in which a stream of soapy water is represented running down into the urchin's right eye is very finely done. Into the other eye there is thrown all the added emotion and pent up grief and "sorrow that knows no tongue." We defy any man to see this picture without being stirred to his inmost depths. Mrs. Snooks's face is a study. It is such an expression of motherly love, housewifely zeal, and beautiful devotion to duty, that can be likened to nothing except that seen upon the faces of our mothers on washdays and at house cleaning times.

Three of the children have already been washed. Their rosy countenances bright with exuberant health have been further heightened by the art of the limner who has depicted them suffering with colds as one result of their baths. At the same time their complexion forms an agreeable contrast to the three behind the tub who have not yet been bathed. This is finely done and cost a world of labor.

The whole forms an agreeable contrast to the naked cherubs sent out by the religious press. It is a domestic scene full of holy joy and tranquilized by a sweet and dream-like peace.

In order to delicately convey the idea that even in so perfect a home as this, sorrow must enter, the artist has depicted one of the children suffering with the measles. The way in which the measles blotches are struggling with the dirt on his nose, having captured the last named organ, is one of the best things in the chromo line that has ever been presented.

We are now prepared to furnish these chromos to every subscriber of the El Paso Journal. We append a few certificates from prominent individuals:

"True to life.—The very atmosphere smells of soap."—Henry Ward Beecher.

"I assure you on my honor, that the chromo is so natural that one of my children actually caught the measles from looking at it."—Ben Butler.

"Reminds me of the time when they used to wash me, now many years ago."—Susan B. Anthony.

"Send us 15,000 dozen of your chromos, 'Washing the Children?' We want to offer them as premiums."—Christian at Work.

"It shows domestic misery in the highest degree. No woman ought to be allowed to have seven children."—Victoria Woodhull.

We trust these testimonials are sufficient. We could append many thousands, but we forbear. Now, let the honest masses show their appreciation of art by coming and taking the Journal.—[El Paso Journal.

SENATOR SUMNER'S RELIGION.

To the Editor of the Providence Journal.

In the discourse on Senator Sumner's religion, reported in your Monday's issue, it is stated that "he never attributed any of his internal feelings to Christ, and he never believed he had met that august brother." Will you allow me space to say in refutation of a statement so unjust to Mr. Sumner's memory, that almost the last thing he did before leaving for Washington to return no more, was to make an address in the Church of the Disciples, Boston, in which with profound and even tearful emotion, he spoke of the love of Christ as no man could speak who had not long and intimately known that love, and urged upon his auditors their acceptance of Him as a Saviour, in terms which made a lasting impression upon at least one who was present. Irritable Invalids.

Indigestion not only affects the physical health, but the dispositions and tempers of its victims. The dyspeptic becomes, too, in a measure demoralized by his sufferings. He is subject to fits of irritation, sullenness, or despair, as the case may be. A preternatural sensitiveness, which he cannot control, leads him to misconstrue the words and acts of those around him, and his intercourse even to those nearest and dearest to him is not unfrequently marked by exhibitions of testiness foreign to his real nature. These are the mental phenomena of the disease, for which the invalid cannot be justly held responsible, but they occasion much household discomfort. It is to the interest of the house circle, it is essential to family harmony as well as to the rescue of the principal sufferer from a state not far removed from incipient insanity, that these symptoms of mental disturbance be promptly removed. This can only be done by removing their physical cause, a derangement of the functions of the stomach and its allied viscera, the liver and the bowels. Upon these three important organs Hostetter's Stomach Bitters act simultaneously, producing a thorough and salutary change in their condition. The vegetable ingredients of which the preparation is composed are of a renovating, regulative and alterative character, and the stimulant which lends activity to their remedial virtues is the purest and best that can be extracted from the most wholesome of all cereals, viz: sound rye. No dyspeptic can take this genial restorative for a single week without experiencing a notable improvement in his general health. Not only will his bodily sufferings abate from day to day, but his mind will recover rapidly from its restlessness and irritability, and this happy change will manifest itself in his demeanor to all around him.

Astral Oil.

PRATT'S ASTRAL OIL.
WHAT IS IT? Astral Oil is a derivative of petroleum, produced by a new and improved process of manufacture, which gives it all the good, without any of the objectionable qualities of ordinary refined kerosene. Explosion is guarded against, and families can burn ASTRAL OIL with THE SAME ASSURANCE OF SAFETY AS THEY CAN GAS.
ITS QUALITIES.—It is perfectly pure, containing no sediment or chemicals. It gives a clear, uniform and beautiful light, unequalled even by gas. It is free from objectionable odors. It burns in the ordinary kerosene lamps. It is always uniform in quality.
ITS SAFETY.—The Astral Oil may be relied upon as non-explosive and in every way perfectly safe to use. If, while burning, a lamp be upset and broken, the contents will not explode or take fire. It is the safest oil that can be made. Persons once using it will have no other. For sale by Grocers generally. 329

GENERAL NEWS.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The District Investigation.

WASHINGTON, April 20.

In the district investigation, Henry S. Davis testified that he thought the value of the old material taken amounted to upwards of two million dollars, that private property was injured fifteen per cent., and that measurements generally were ten per cent. in excess of actual work done.

From the U. S. Military Commander at Little Rock, Ark.

The following was received here last night:

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., April 19.

To the Secretary of War:

Received the President's instructions; they are carried out. There is some excitement. It will soon subside. The force is small on each side. T. E. ROSE,
Capt. Sixteenth Infantry, Commanding Post.

The Centennial.

The bill appropriating $3,000,000 for the Centennial showed much more strength in the House today than even its friends had anticipated. By a vote of 154 ayes to 66 nays, it was made the special order for the fifth of May, to the exclusion of all other business except appropriation bills. This, however, cannot be taken as a test vote upon the bill, since many voted to give it a hearing who will in the end vote against it.

A New National Bank Note Tax Bill.

Mr. Starkweather of Connecticut today reported a bill which was referred to the committee on ways and means, providing that on and after July next there shall be levied a tax of one twentieth of one per cent upon the sales of all stocks, bonds, gold and silver bullion, coin, and promissory notes, and other securities, the taxes to be collected through the machinery of the internal revenue bureau.

FROM NEW YORK.

The Troubles of the New York Committee in Visiting the President.

NEW YORK, April 19.

Cyrus W. Field says the interview of the New York anti-inflation committee with the President, that the latter accorded a private interview, but Butler forced himself in, took the President aside, held him in close conversation ten minutes, the committee standing meanwhile, and again, after the addresses began, Messrs. Logan, Ferry and Carpenter entered, and in a very discourteous way remained and listened to the whole interview. It was stated to Mr. Field that Mr. Logan made some uncomplimentary remarks about the committee.

Mr. Winston, another committee man, says the Senators entered with cigars in their mouths in a very ungentlemanly manner. Mr. De Hawley, also a committee man, says the conduct of the Senators was very ungentlemanly, while that of Logan was disgusting, and the manner of Butler in interrupting the proceedings was badly out of taste. John O. Johnston, another member of the committee, looked upon the action of Butler and the three Senators as a conspiracy to prevent the President from committing himself in his reply to the committee.

The Attempted Fraud on the Merchants' Life Insurance Company.

The examination in the cases of Dr. Uling, Louise Germs and Charles Finck, for conspiring to defraud the Merchants' Life Insurance Company of $10,000, was concluded this afternoon in the Tombs police court. A motion to discharge the prisoners was denied, and the doctor and Louise were each committed for trial in default of $5000.

The Tammany Society Election.

The Tammany Society met tonight to elect officers for the ensuing year. There was a strong opposition ticket, ex-Sheriff Brennan being leader of the opposition party, but everything passed off quietly, no speeches being made. The regular ticket was elected by 185 against 110 votes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Overflowed.

Ten Thousand People on the Verge of Starvation.

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.

Official despatches state the whole country from Monroe to the mouth of the Red River is under water and 10,000 people in that district will soon be on the verge of starvation. A large number of negroes from the overflowed district are flocking to the city. Governor Kellogg has issued a proclamation to the officials and citizens of the overflowed district, assuring them that the state government had done, and is doing, all its resources allow toward alleviating the sufferings of those reduced to destitution by the disastrous crevasses and floods. Applications have been made to the general government for aid, which he has reason to believe will be promptly responded to. The mayor of New Orleans, president of the chamber of commerce, and a committee of distinguished citizens are doing all that can be done to send immediate necessities to those most in need.

Food, clothing and money will be forwarded without delay. They advise against sending the distressed population to the city, already overcrowded with unemployed people, recommend the organization of parish committees for the distribution of supplies, and that the laborers or the inundated districts be assisted in making their way to those parishes not under water, where their assistance still will be needed.

Baxter and Brooks.

LITTLE ROCK, April 20.

There is no change in the situation. A company of United States soldiers occupied the telegraph office and Gazette building. A few additional companies have been added to Governor Baxter's forces, and one to the Brooks men. Both sides are resting on their arms.

Action of the Philadelphia Board of Trade.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.

The board of trade tonight adopted resolutions asking the President to veto the currency bill now before him. A memorial was also ordered to be sent to Congress denouncing the system of moieties and the employment of spies and informers as part of the customs department.

Terrible Tragedy in Stonington.

STONINGTON, CONN., April 20.

While Henry D. Langworthy and wife of this place, were at church last evening, their two sons, Irving and Courtland, were attacked, as is supposed, by the hired man. Irving was killed and Courtland is not expected to recover. The hired man is under arrest. There is great excitement here.

NEW YORK ITEMS.

Capt Nathaniel Downs and crew of the schooner President, wrecked and burned on Oysterman's Point, were not lost.

The Savanna Bay Company's steamer Tybee will be sold at auction on the 27th, for default in the payment of the interest on a mortgage on her.

The Troy Methodist conference by a vote of 80 to 50, adopted a resolution against the manufacture, sale, or use of tobacco by its members.

In consequence of the continued bad weather the crews of the life saving station at Bellport and several other stations have been ordered back to duty.

The committee of grain receivers appointed by the produce exchange has prepared provisional rules for grading and delivery of grain, which they have submitted to the railroads for consideration.

Over $16,000 worth of silks and other goods, said to belong to a wealthy Broadway importer, was seized on Friday by order of the special agent of the Treasury, Howe, on board the Cunard steamship Russia. An attempt was made to land the goods in travelling trunks as personal baggage.

The rumor that 900 employes had been discharged by the department of public works for want of funds is incorrect. Several hundred men were turned over to the Croton bureau to allow the completion of the work on hand. There will be some discharges, however from the department of parks for want of funds.

The motion, before Judge Blatchford, to have the books of Messrs Platt & Boyd returned to them, was ordered on the ground that the law under which Informer Jayne seized them was unconstitutional. The judge decided that the law was constitutional, but as Jayne had held them an unreasonable length of time, he was ordered to give them up.

The Boston ship Puritan, Captain Doane, sprang a leak in the lower New York harbor on Friday evening last, and was abandoned by her crew, but was rescued by a salvage crew.

WASHINGTON ITEMS.

A report that Secretary Fish had placed his resignation in the hands of the President, Mr. Fish pronounces untrue.

There is yet no official indication concerning the President's action on the financial bill, but the general impression is that he will approve it.

The President has signed an act making the appropriation for the payment of teachers in the public schools of this district; also an act authorizing the use of certain unexpended balances for the payment of expenses of the board of Indian commissioners.

The Secretary of State has requested our consul at Havana to make a full investigation into the case of Dockray, and in the mean time to request Captain General Concha to suspend and not allow the sentence of death to be carried out. No response has been received as to whether the request will be granted.

Newport Daily News.

TUESDAY, APRIL 21, 1874.

"I was fascinated by this spectacle. Sir Thomas, leaning forward in his seat, his knees on a level with his chin, abandoned himself to his habitual reveries, while the horse, slowly picked his way along and laying his head upon his chest to serve as a counterpoise to the carriage, suspended us in a measure in mid-air. Soon we attained a less dangerous summit. The view was magnificent; the immense perspective dazzled our eyes. Turning our heads, we saw, not far off, the cavern of Spinbronn; The brushwood overhanging it was of a vivid green, and the water, which before falling upon the plateau below flowed over a bed of sand and flat pebbles, was so limpid that we might have believed it to be glass if misty vapors had not covered its surface.

"The horse stopped a moment to breathe. Sir Thomas, arousing himself, looked for some moments upon the surrounding country.

"'All is quiet,' said he. Then, after an instant of silence: 'If you were not here, Frantz, I think I should like to bathe in this basin.'

"'But, commodore, why do you not do it? I should enjoy a ramble about here. I see some flowers—I will gather a bouquet for my cousin. In an hour I will return.'

"'Very well, Frantz that is a good idea. Doctor pretends that I drink too much Burgundy—This little bathing place pleases me.'

"Then jumping to the ground and fastening his horse to the trunk of a birch-tree, he waved his head as if to say to me, 'You may go.'

"I saw him seat himself upon the moss and draw off his boots. As I withdrew, he turned and cried:

"'In an hour Frantz.'

"These were his last words.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 State St., opp. Kilby St., Boston.

AFTER AN EXTENSIVE PRACTICE of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."

CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office."

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proofs of great talent and ability on his part, leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."

Special Notices.

DR. SCHENCK'S STANDARD REMEDIES.

The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC, and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and if taken before the lungs are destroyed, a speedy cure is effected.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is soon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed mixes with the food, and prevents souring. It assists the digestion, by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

Dr. Schenck can be consulted at the Quincy House, Boston, on Wednesday, March 25th, April 8th and 22nd, May 13th and 27th.

Advice will be given free, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer, the charge is $5.00.

Schenck's Medicines are sold by all Druggists throughout the country.

Schenck's Almanac can be had of all Druggists free.

PATENT

PARABOLA SPECTACLES.

Constructed in accordance with the Philosophy of Nature.

ADMIRABLY ADAPTED TO THE ORGAN OF SIGHT, AND AFFORDING ALTOGETHER THE BEST ARTIFICIAL

Help to the Human Vision.

The Parabola Glasses can be used for the greatest length of time, either by day or night, with perfect ease, (when selected to suit the state of the eye,) and never cause that giddiness of the head, or unpleasant sensation to the eyes that many experience from using the common kind, but tend to strengthen and improve the sight.

[From the Rev. Thomas Potter, Norwich Conn.]

Having used a pair of the Parabola Spectacles, I am fully persuaded of their superiority over every other kind, and am confident that the best recommendations are impartial trials. THOMAS POTTER.

[From the Hon. Isaac Hill, late Governor of New Hampshire.]

I have used the Parabola Spectacles for the last three years; and with eyes prematurely injured by severe catarrh for more than forty years, I find them unsurpassed, especially in night reading. ISAAC HILL.

[From M. G. Kerr, M. D., Norristown, Pa.]

I do most willingly bear my testimony in favor of the superiority of the Patent Parabola over all other kinds of Spectacles. They are constructed upon the best established and understood principles of Optics, and their adaptation to the human Eye in its different conditions of vision is so perfect as to render sight easy without effort. In my opinion, none others should be used, since the Eyes once used to them do not seem to grow old, and by having a focus at any point of the surface they appear to restore the eyes to their youthful energy. M. G. KERR, M. D.

[From Isaac Hollzer, M. D., Reading, Pa.]

I have for several years worn the Patent Parabola Spectacles, and have found them decidedly superior to the Spectacle glasses heretofore in use.

ISAAC HOLLZER, M. D.

☞ Should the focus of these Glasses, after making trial of them, be found not adapted to the sight, purchasers are particularly requested to have them changed until suited.

CURES

KINGSLEY'S IRON TONIC.

General Debility, Neuralgia, Nervous Affections, Dyspepsia, Female Complaints, Weakness, Poverty of Blood, Pale Lips and Faces, Depression of Spirits, Boils, &c.

Everyone with no energy or strength to do anything, with sleepless nights from over working the brain, should use this remedy. It is a blood maker, and will give you a rich flow of it through the system.

I have testimonials from the Superintendents of the best Hospitals in New England as to its value. They regard it as the BEST TONIC in the market. Druggists say, "Our Doctors prescribe and speak highly of it. It is taking the lead of all preparations of that nature. We have had a great sale of it. It gives the best satisfaction to my customers. We take it ourselves and recommend it to everyone."

Remember that Druggists' testimony is that of a large class of customers. Now yourself take courage and try the best thing out.

This valuable medicine is for sale by Druggists. If they haven't it, ask them to order it for you.
